

press were really on my case. Jacqui was doing a good job. She was relentless and sent garments by taxis from one side of London to the other.

Harriet became well-known for our pretty delicate evening dresses, so although I had designed them for the 'debs' that crammed into my little boutique a few months ago, now they were seen everywhere.

Male!

THE SUNDAY EXPRESS LONDON DECEMBER 17 1967

VERONICA PAPWORTH

Those so-dressy

Female!

Every debutante in the country owned at least one of these dresses

DRAWINGS BY VERONICA PAPWORTH